No. I am sure Mrs. Harrison had no fear of any criticism on the course she is obliged to adopt.

"We all met for the first time Tuesday, at Mrs. Blaine's luncheon, and discussed all our plans for the Winter. It was an exceedingly friendly meeting, and every one present seemed anxious to do what they could to make the first season of the Administration a success. Instead of saving themselves, every lady expressed a willingless to assume all her responsibilities. There was the greatest good cheer and every one deferred to Mrs. Mekve as they would to Mrs. Marrison herself. No. Lar from quarreling about rank we are assuming all our responsibilities, not even demorring at the question that in time past has caused so much bickering—I mean the precedence of the Senatorial over the Cabinet ladies and their obligation to make the first call.
